LULL IN FIGHTING IS DUE TO DOWNPOUR

Unofficial Accounts Estimate Allies Losses Fifty Thousand, With Double That Number of German Losses—More Than Two Thousand French Captured at Aisne—Emperor William Still at Luxemburg—Official Bureau at London Claims Conditions Unchanged—A New Modern War Terror.

(By Associated Press.)
Paris, Sept. 19.—The latest official reports announce a lull in the titanic artillery duel at Aisne. This is taken to indicate that today's fighting may consist of a tremendous infantry advance such as made the Marne battlefield a scene of indescribable carnage.

Berlin dispatches are more confident today, asserting the allies have "shot their bolt" and are weakening. The Germans now admit they were short of ammunition, but claim this has been remedied and they fill their ranks with fresh troops as fast as the allies mow them down, while the allies haven't enough men thus far to replenish their gaps.

One cause of the slackening of artillery may be on account of the downpour of rain beginning last night, probably filling many German trenches with water, greatly diminishing their advantage. The Daily Mail's Paris man says the French artillery hasn't yet mastered the German trenches, which hide heavy guns deep in the woods and mark infantry on edges of forests. The French charges, he says, sometimes drive into the heart of the woods before being spent. The German counter attacks are mostly at night.

The Times man at Eprenay describes four days' fighting for possession of an old chateau on top of a ridge, six miles east of Sezanne. The Germans first captured it. French cannon then breached the walls, the French charged, fighting hand to hand on lawns and gardens in the breaches, recapturing the place. The Germans again drove out the French, who on the fourth day won the ridge by destroying the chateau artillery.

The French Turcos are natural night fighters, who frequently throw away their guns in close quarters, using daggers with terrible skill. Unofficial accounts estimate the allies' losses at fifty thousand and the Germans' at one hundred thousand.

Berlin, Sept. 19.—(Official.)—In the battle at Aisne the Germans stormed Beaumont, capturing 2,500 French.

Antwerp, Sept. 19.—It is reported that the Germans have abandoned Termonde and Londerzeel.

Geneva, Sept. 19.—It is reported that Emperor William is still in Luxemburg.

(By Associated Press.)
London, Sept. 19.—The official bureau announces the situation unchanged. The British repulsed a counter attack last night, with weather bad and raining continuously.

(By Associated Press.)
Paris, Sept. 19.—It is officially announced that the Germans are strongly entrenching Aisne, with reinforcements from Lorraine.

(By Associated Press.)
London, Sept. 19.—Petrograd reports that the Austrians are still holding Przemyśl and have organized a new front, which the Russians are preparing to attack immediately. It is rumored that the Austrian cavalry was wiped out, and it is also rumored that Pola, in Austria, is in revolt.

A Modern War Terror.
(By Associated Press.)
Berlin, Sept. 19.—A shower of steel arrows dropped from French aeroplanes is the most modern war terror, according to the Munich Medical Weekly. These arrows are made of pressed steel, heavy heads and slender shaft, about four inches long. French aviators drop them from a height of about a mile. They mushroom out, covering a wide area of ground when they hit. A man telling the story said his regiment was resting in close formation when two French aeroplanes released arrows. One German was killed and several wounded. Many crawled under wagons to escape further arrows.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 19.—The House leaders agree that there is no possibility of passing the central bank bill this special session. The Senate adopted the resolution for adjournment yesterday noon. The House passed finally the bill divorcing corporation owned gas and oil mills. The House wired a protest to Washington to the proposed war tax. The warehouse receipts cost Texas farmers one million dollars.

Bryan spots 8 1/4c, middling basis

From reports gotten from the cotton men of the city, it was found today that since yesterday about 1,600 bales of Brazos bottom cotton has been bought by the Bryan cotton buyers for 9c per pound. This price places Bryan in the lead over any of the markets of the South, as is shown by the following quotations from these markets: Savannah, Ga., 8 1/4c; Charleston, S. C., 8 1/4c; Norfolk, Va., 8 1/4c; Augusta, Ga., 8 1/4c; Memphis, Tenn., 8 1/4c; New Orleans, La., 8 1/4c; Houston, 8 3/8c; Galveston, 8 3/8c; Dallas, 8 1/4c; Fort Worth, 8 1/8c; San Antonio, 8c.
The American cotton mills are reported out of the market almost entirely, and the cotton which has been sold in Bryan recently will be exported, principally to Liverpool.

A. & M. RECEPTION BRILLIANT AFFAIR

Officials of the Institution Cordially Welcomed by Citizens of Bryan.

The reception and banquet tendered the officials of the A. & M. College at Hotel Bryan last night was one of the most brilliant affairs of the kind the city has known in years. It was largely attended, the participants representing the leading citizenship of the city in commercial and professional life. The spirit of cordiality and good fellowship that prevailed was fine, and an atmosphere of closer relationship, of better and more intimate understanding, of helpfulness and co-operation seemed to pervade the occasion. Not only did this apply as to the citizens of Bryan and the people of the A. & M. College, but included also the several business men of Navasota, our sister city, and who are our neighbors and friends, as well as warm friends and supporters of the A. & M. College. Dr. Bizzell, the new president of the college, was for a number of years at the head of the Navasota city schools, and it was indeed a happy idea to have his old friends and neighbors of Navasota present to assist in welcoming him to his new and responsible position, and to citizenship in this community.

The banquet was served in the spacious dining room of Hotel Bryan, under the capable direction of the proprietor, Mr. J. S. Doane. It was perfect in all its appointments and the elegant menu served was as follows: Celery on Brauche. Queen Olives. Fried Tenderloin of Trout—Tartar Sauce.

Saratoga Chips.
Lettuce and Tomato Salad.
Broiled Squab Chicken—Lunon Butter.
French Peas en Cas.
Asparagus Tips.
French Fried Potatoes.
Hot Vienna Rolls.
Brick Ice Cream. Chocolate Cake.
Iced Tea.
Cigars.

At the conclusion of the banquet the guests were called to order by President A. W. Wilkerson of the Commercial Club, who briefly stated the purpose for which they were assembled, and called Prof. R. O. Allen to preside as toastmaster. Prof. Allen was in his happiest vein and, though called to preside without a moment's notice, did it in such a graceful and happy manner as to add largely to the pleasure and success of the occasion.

Hon. W. C. Davis was the first speaker of the evening and addressed himself to the subject, "The New Administration and Bryan." He dwelt at some length on the relationship between Bryan and the A. & M. College, stressing the value of the college to Bryan and the reciprocal spirit of the citizenship in their unfaltering and untiring loyalty to the institution. To Dr. Bizzell, the new head of the administration, his personal friend of many years' standing and former classmate in college, he paid a beautiful and sincere tribute. He closed by saying that the new president of A. & M. College, though yet young, was a man of strong personality and splendid executive ability. A man of scholarly attainments and thoroughly equipped for the duties and responsibilities he was assuming. Above it all, he was a Christian gentleman and came to the A. & M. College with clean hands, a clean heart and pure life, and the influence of his splendid manhood would be a shield and protection to every young man of Texas entrusted to his keeping.

Dr. Bizzell was next introduced by the toastmaster and responded to the new administration. His address was masterful and The Eagle will not attempt to quote him, because extracts from an address of that kind is a great injustice to the speaker unless given in full. It was a plain, practical, sensible talk, without any effort at oratory, and as he said himself, a confidential talk right out of his heart. He expressed his gratification at the splendid welcome extended him and his pleasure in becoming a citizen of this community; a community of churches and schools, and of enlightened, Christian men and women. In referring to the position he had just left, the presidency of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, he said it was the most pleasant in which his lot had ever been cast, and from the standpoint of satisfaction, he never expected to find its equal. He came to the A. & M. College in response to a call from the people of Texas, and because he believed it an opportunity and field for larger service. He had come to put his energies, his efforts, his very life into the work, and in the great battle he asked the support and co-operation of the people of Bryan and assured of that, he knew success was certain and the future held great thing and a great career for the State Agricultural and Mechanical College.

Dean Puryear responded in a very happy vein to the toast, "What A. & M. Has Done for Texas." Mr. Puryear is always a happy speaker, but on this occasion he eclipsed his own record as an after-dinner orator. He pointed out, among other things, that Bryan is the logical base of supplies for the college people. "This being true," he went on to say, "it would seem the part of wisdom for Bryan to keep the lines of communication open."

Colonel E. B. Cushing, president of the board of directors of the college, responded to the subject, "What A. & M. Has Done for Texas." He outlined briefly some of the plans now under way for the general betterment
